

ASKS UNCLE SAM TO NOT PRESS CLAIM

asks Uncle Sam
British Reminds United States That the Chinese Loan Arrangement
Was Only Secured With Difficulty.

London, June 18—Great Britain has asked America not to press her claim for payment of the $17,200,000 which British, German and French bankers stand ready to take up. Great Britain points out that the arrangement was only secured after the greatest difficulties, involving long negotiations between the British, French, German and Chinese governments. As the United States did not ask for joint action, it is proposed that she did not desire to take the share to which she was entitled under the convention with China.

CONSTABLE SHOT

BY TRAIN ROBBER

Bandits Held Up Train To Capture Crew's Pay Envelopes—Posse In Pursuit.

McKee, Okla., June 18—Johnson Kirk, a deputy constable, was killed in a fight between officers and three train robbers, who held up a St. Louis & San Francisco passenger freight train near Braga, Oklahoma, today. The trainmen had received orders from their superiors to stop, starting on their run and the object of the robbery was to get the train crew. The robbers, four men, all officers, armed with revolvers, engaged in a fight and Kirk was shot through the breast and captured. The robbers, who were two men and a posse is pursuing them, Sheriff Ramsey, with two deputies and a posse, are en route to Braga to assist in the pursuit of the robbers. The posse, consisting of 15 men, will travel 15 miles south of here, and up to a late hour tonight no news was received from the pursuing posse.

REBUKES CLERICAL COMPONENTS
General Chancellor Gees After His Opposition.

Berlin, June 17—Chancellor Von Buelow, speaking in a relaxed tone on financial reform attended by clerical party leaders and clerical tacticians employed by the clerical party against him. They had even dared, he said, to demand that he sever his social relations with him.

"Possibly it is because I have lived so long abroad, continued the chancellor, that I have been unable to exclude any one from social relations because of difference of politics." He added: "I shall not be compelled to do so again." When asked if he would not be compelled to do so again, he replied: "I do not know that she did not desire to take the share to which she was entitled under the convention with China,

POSSIBLY IT IS BECAUSE I HAVE LIVED SO LONG ABROAD, CONTINUED THE CHANCELLOR, THAT I HAVE BEEN UNABLE TO EXCLUDE ANY ONE FROM SOCIAL RELATIONS BECAUSE OF DIFFERENCE OF POLITICS."

He said: "I shall not be compelled to do so again."

In concluding the Chancellor praised the work of the Liberal party in the development of German national life, and spoke highly of the great contributions which the party was making today toward the national welfare. Continuing, Prince Buelow and other members of the government, who were in such a way that the Liberal party might continue to cooperate.

THE RADIAL RAILWAY PROPOSAL

If the interests of the city can be properly safeguarded there are many reasons for thinking it would be well to make an agreement with our partners who are anxious of building radial railway lines through-out the country tributary to the Twin cities.

The advantages of such lines hardly needs to be argued. They would be fit both cities and have the added attraction of a way of communication which could be made cheap and easy in all weather and at all times. The pleasure of life in the city would be increased by the opportunity for cheap and frequent visits to the country.

A farm would be created by the opportunity for getting into the city easily, frequently and little expense.

Trade would be made easier and would therefore be increased and steadied. The farmer would have easier access to his market. He would thus be enabled to take advantage of a rise in market prices, or of the time of year or the conditions of the roads. On the other hand the resident of the town would always be able to get fresh produce from the only producer in the country, at reasonable prices, instead of being deprived of it at one season because of impassable roads and buying it at another time for less than the producer can afford to sell.

There is no reason why both the supply and the townsmen will reap substantial and tangible benefits.

The radial railway is an acknowledged factor in the life of every well developed city.

From the time the city and the adjoining country radiate into the side of the road, making easy the means of local trade, and of intercourse between the rural and urban residents.

There is no reason why such lines should not play a highly important and most useful part in promoting the development of western communities. The best of all ways of securing progress at once rapid and permanent is to build radial lines which is desirable to live. To do this we increase the desire of people to live in the country, and hence the desire of others to come to the country to make their homes when on farms or in towns. In establishing and connecting the electric railways has a broad opportunity for usefulness and if we can bring this factor into play at an early stage we shall promote the progress of the community very materially and along very desirable lines.

There are two ways by which this can be accomplished locally. The city may undertake to build the lines or we may allow a company to build them. The latter is the better. In this case we could not prevent a company building them if they wanted to, for the reason that our charters are not exclusive.

However this may be we could certainly want to do so, unless we were paid to go into the business at once ourselves. This it hardly seems that we are ready to do. Our street railway system is only partially completed and it has a good length of line the majority of which has been laid many times before the two cities are served by it as they must be served a very few years hence. To do this we shall have to put money into street railroads and into the electric lines. While the investment so far has been good and while there is every reason in support that with reason exercised in the construction of the new lines it will continue to pay, it was felt that the value in the prospect of holding a monopoly was what we have rather than endangering this by grasping at too much. Edmonton can finance the street railway lines without trouble, but that we could finance both these and large amounts of capital for another question. Reconciling that we have other public services, too into which we must put many thousands in the immediate future it would perhaps be better to content ourselves with the street lines and the rest of the business, leaving to others the building and operation of the rural lines.

MRS. GOULD ON STAND.

THE DEFENCE IN THE FAMOUS SOCIETY TRIAL GIVES EVIDENCE.

New York, June 15.—Torn with anger and extreme humiliation, alternately clutching his hands in desperation, Katherine Commons Gould sat through the court-martial, the examination of her son for separation against Howard Gould, third son of the late James J. Gould.

It was a day of testimony for the defense, during which Mr. Gould told his story, being supported by witnesses who had been associated with Mrs. Gould that her habits were such that she was unable to leave him. In the event of proving this, the defense hoped to under- mine the only phase of the plaintiff's case which has withheld the attack of the prosecution, namely, the charge of being ruled out of the charge of robbery and non-support yesterday. Howard Gould himself may take the stand tomorrow.

Mrs. Gould had nothing to say in defense of the conduct of a woman in fashion in the matter of dress at Palm Beach and elsewhere. Witnesses for the defense of the same woman in fashion in the matter of aesthetic standards, and those who had been associated with Mrs. Gould, testified to her having in her hands, of certain remarks and conversations, which were fully displayed, and which suitable accommodation may be given to those remarks.

A target for the use of the defense was the statement of the Edmon-ton police chief, that the flat near Ross' Hotel, Prairieland, where Mrs. Gould was staying, was less than $120 and some holders prefer to sell at the flat.

Witnesses for the defense arrived on Tuesday for parties in town who endorsed them on Gun Strange's word, and provided themselves with arms.

A target for the use of the defense was the statement of the Edmonton police chief, that the flat near Ross' Hotel, Prairieland, where Mrs. Gould was staying, was less than $120 and some holders prefer to sell at the flat near Ross' Hotel.

The new built for government transport to Fort Pitt a week or two ago is to be used for the trial, according to Mr. L. H. Cook, as though the transport business from Edmonton has none.

Alberta lets the H. B. company landing half an hour after her arrival and went to Hazelton, B.C., to land the mail and bring back two cocktails before breakfast, among the stations brought in by the mail.

During this testimony evidence concerning some of the alleged violence and profane language used by the defense to be printed, that Mrs. Gould was present.

Mrs. Gould Recovered.

Yet she recovered herself quickly, and at times coached her lawyer, Mr. C. C. St. Albert, in his speech with surges and reminders. Specifying the statements that Mrs. Gould had made in her defense, he said: "You little human one night; that she came to me in a stagger against the banister at Castle Gould; that her mail brought two cocktails before breakfast, among the stations brought in by the mail.

On Monday afternoon last W. H. Hutton's team and buckboard rolled over the river bank, near the fort, while on a runaway excursion, but arrived at the right landing done. No one was in the buckboard at the time of the upset.

Twenty-four and twenty-five wagons and carts loaded with military supplies arrived on Wednesday.

The Rifles are patrolling in the vicinity of Sudell Lake.

Mr. St. Albert, in charge of rifle practice around town lately, it is perhaps unnecessary to recall all the details of his trial account their long range are very dangerous weapons to fire, scarcely near a target.

June 20th, 1909.

Golden Text.—With great power gave the apostles witness of the resurrection of the Lord Jesus. Acts 1:1-11.

The following review is planned for all who are taking up these Bible studies. It will be given in full, and studied the eleven lessons here reviewed or only a part of them. Every lesson is a complete study, and will capture a reader's attention it can be made a profitable lesson in itself.

The title and subject of the lesson, what was found, the Golden Text, and one question for each lesson follow.

April 4—Acts xii-4, Peter, and Cornelius. Golden Text, Acts xiii.

In every nation that he breathes, I will declare my righteousness; it seems of Him.

Verses 1, 2.—Can you give the Jews a matter of the intellect through lack of evidence; or was it a matter of the heart? The King of Christians does not attend church, an act like a Christian when away from home, a man who has been converted, and now must he how may act when here?

May 16—Acts xii-28. Paul, First Corinthian.

Paul, First Corinthian. All the gods of the nations are idols; but the Lord made us.

Verses 1, 2.—Was the unbield of the Jews a matter of the intellect through lack of evidence; or was it a matter of the heart? The King of Christians captured his attention, and he became a Christian, and then rebelled against God!

May 23—Acts xv-20. Golden Text, Proverbs xxi.

We believe that through the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ we are saved.

Verses 6-17.—An actual experience of God, and his dealings with us, continue to increase our knowledge of the things which the experience covers?

June 20—Jan. 11-26. Believers in Christ. Golden Text, Jan. 11-25.

The conversion of Saul, Golden Text, Acts 9.

April 18—Acts xi-26. Easter Lesson. Golden Text. L. Cor. xix-23.

Now is Christ risen from the dead, the first fruits of them that slept.

Verses 12.—Can you mention a single man, tribe, or people in the past, or the present, that has not believed, or does not believe, in life after death, in resurrection?

April 11-17. Cor. xv-20-26. Easter Lesson.

Golden Text. L. Cor. xix-23.

Now is Christ risen from the dead, the first fruits of them that slept.

Verses 13.—Can you mention a single man, tribe, or people in the past, or the present, that has not believed, or does not believe, in life after death, in resurrection?
